OverviewLife just keeps coming at you! How are you going to meet it? Over the past few years, I've had the opportunity to experience how attitude and intention make all the difference between really living your life or just surviving it. With 3 teenage boys, a little girl and husband who was recently diagnosed with cancer... life can take about a dozen different directions on any given day! You can't always control your circumstances but you can control your attitude! Some days are easier than others
